Adobe refers to Photoshop Elements, for images up to about 50 megapixels. Bridge Bridge is Photoshop's editing tool and file browser. It lets you work with multiple images at a time. You can name images, drag and drop them, and edit them on a single canvas. You can also edit or browse through your photo library easily. Bridge also lets you access, preview, or duplicate files and folders. Photoshop Elements Photoshop Elements is a less-expensive version of Photoshop that is perfect for beginners. It uses the same file system and editing system as Photoshop and comes with all of the same tools that professional image editors need. However, it has limited resolution for large files. Tutorials Photoshop tutorials are an extremely helpful tool for making images look like those in a magazine or film. Although they can be used for any camera, they are more useful for those who shoot very large or low-quality images. The more features a camera or lens supports, the more possible image problems are allowed to exist. Tutorials are helpful when you are learning how to use Photoshop's various tools to manipulate or create images that are larger than a laptop screen, such as whether to use different filters or overlay tools to make the image look like a piece of film. More information about Photoshop can be found in Chapter 3. Maurice McKay Maurice McKay (1911 – November 19, 1972) was a politician in Manitoba, Canada. He was a Liberal member of the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba from 1958 to 1969, and served as a cabinet minister in the government of Sterling Lyon. McKay was born in Kanata, Ontario, and grew up in Manitoba. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Manitoba, and worked as a public accountant after graduation. He was also an instructor in the Manitoba College of Accountancy and Auditing. McKay was first elected to the Manitoba legislature in the 1958 provincial election, defeating incumbent Social Credit MLA Gertrude Joseph by a margin of 486 votes in the south Winnipeg constituency of St. Vital. The Liberal Party won a landslide victory in this election, and McKay served as his party's Deputy Minister of Finance. He was easily re-elected in the 1959 and 1962 elections, and was returned to cabinet in the government of Dufferin Roblin as Minister of Trade and Commerce. He resigned from the legislature in 1969 to accept a position as manager of the Canadian Food Inspection Agency's research and development division. He died in late 1972, and was replaced as MLA for St. Vital by W.R. Bliss of the Manitoba Liberal Party.
